

This is the concept of an app to shape future cities through urban planning, involving its inhabitants and those who left it to any other place in the world.

This is an open design process for everyone to contribute ideas, opinions and stories to form MyHama. The aim is to create a tool for real-time, participatory processes for a democratically designed Hama which can be contributed and sponsored from anywhere in the world.

The exhibition demonstrates the first draft concept for how the app can work. It also encourages people to interactively participate in the exhibit by contributing ideas, knowledge and commentary as it would happen with MyHama.
